

Choose To-Day From 25 New, Charming Styles in $3.00 Waists and Blouses, $1.98

One look at this assortment of beautiful styles and you will surely want to buy at least one or two of these Waists and Blouses at $1.98. They are brimful of smartness and fashion—the identical quality garments for which every other store charges $3.00. The cool, sheer models the women require for the hot days of summer.

This Marquisette Blouse $1.98 (Just like illustration) Blouse of fine French Marquisette, with flat pointed collar, wide side pleated frills, finished with bands, embroidered in pastel shades; sleeves trimmed to match; 34 to 44.	This Beautiful Blouse $1.98 (Just like illustration) Blouse of fine Marquisette; yoke back and front; finished with andrews, flat Dixie collar, scooped in colors and trimmed in cluny insertion; cuffs trimmed to match; buttons to harmonize with scooped; 34 to 44.	This Striped Voile Blouse $1.98 (Just like illustration) Blouse of fine striped Voile; yoke back and front; V neck, with collar of clerie and full length sleeves with cuffs to match; 34 to 44.	This Batiste Waist $1.98 (Just like illustration) Waist of fine Batiste, front embroidered in pastel shades, pointed collar and cuffs of colored voile, finished with lace edge; 34 to 44.
---	---	---	---

The Blouse Store—Third Floor.

The Store of To-Day and To-Morrow. Kaufmann & Company Corner Fourth and Broad Streets.

Social and Personal

The Right Rev. Arthur S. Lloyd, Bishop of New York, and Mrs. Lloyd, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Gay Blackford, and the Rev. Churchill J. Gibson, son of the Right Rev. Robert A. Gibson, Bishop of Virginia. The ceremony will take place at Christ Protestant Episcopal Church, near Short Hills, N. J., some time this month, and after a wedding journey, Mr. Gibson and his bride will make their home at Luray.

Miss Lloyd has frequently visited in Richmond, and both she and the groom-to-be are widely and prominently related throughout Virginia and Maryland. Bishop Gibson and his daughters, who reside on Park Avenue, will go to New Jersey to attend the wedding, as will a number of other Richmond people.

Of Interest Here.
Friends of Mrs. Herant Mattheosian, formerly Miss Madge Freedley, of this city, will be interested in hearing of the jubilee tendered her father-in-law, Dr. Bader Mattheosian, by the physicians of Constantinople on the expiration of his fiftieth year as a physician. A reception was given Dr. Mattheosian at the famous Tokatlani Hotel in Pera, Turkey, which was thronged with distinguished Armenian guests, the American colony being represented by the consul and vice-consul, the president and faculty of Rokek College, members of the American embassy and others. Many representative Greeks were also present, as well as other prominent guests of other nationalities.

Speeches were made and numerous telegrams and letters of congratulation were also read. A gold pen and pencil, set in sapphires and diamonds, were presented on this golden anniversary by the physicians, and an exquisite quilt-shaped pen, set in rubies and diamonds, was presented by a special envoy from his native town.

Recital Wednesday.
The pupils of Mrs. William R. Reinhardt will be heard in an evening of music to-morrow night at 8:30 o'clock at the Conservatory of Music, corner of Laurel and Broad Streets. It will be a very delightful event, and the following program will be rendered:

"Un bel di" Miss Josephine Enright.
"Song of the Chimney" Worrell.
"The Maiden and the Butler" Metcalf.
"The Maiden and the Butler" Chadwick.
"I'm Wearing Away" Foote.
"The Evening Eyes" McDowell.
"The Evening Eyes" Schumann.
"Obstination" Fontaineilles.
"Good-By, Summer" Lynes.
"Whispering Hope" Hawthorne.
"Flower Song" Gounod.
"Lullaby" Puccini.
"A Rose Fable" Hawley.
"Mellande in Wood" Brahms.
"Song of My Mother" Dvorak.
"From the Land of the Sky Blue Water" Cadman.
"Du bist wie eine Blume" Rubinstein.
"La Colombine" McKinley.
"Ma Lil' Sunbeam" Chadwick.
"Allan" Wilson.
"A Little Winding Road" Ronald.
"Carmen" Miss Enright.
Barcarolle Miss Taylor.
Chesterfield Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, held its regular monthly meeting on Friday afternoon at the Chester High School Building. This was the last meeting until fall, and a great deal of important business was transacted. The treasurer's report was most encouraging, and two new members, Miss Jennie Ramsey and Mrs. Ann Maria Gregson, of South Richmond, will take place on June 17. Mrs. Robertson and Miss Pettigrew were assisted in receiving.

Children's Wash Dresses, 69c and 98c.

J. B. Mosby & Co.

ceiving by Mrs. Wash Bridgeforth, and the house was prettily decorated with pink sweet peas, ferns and pink shaded candles, the same color scheme being carried out in the refreshments. A bouquet of sweet peas, tied with pink tulle, was presented to each guest as a souvenir of the occasion. Miss Minnie Weisger presided at the punch bowl.

In Atlantic City.
Misses Mary E. Harvey and Sarah A. Harvey, of Paradise, Catonsville, Md., have recently returned from an extended stay at Old Point Comfort, Richmond and Norfolk. They are now in Atlantic City, where they expect to spend the month of June, and will later go to Narragansett Pier, R. I. The Misses Harvey will spend the late summer in Maine, returning to their Maryland home in the fall.

Marriage Announced.
Cards have been issued announcing the marriage of Miss Mary Anna Griffith and John Joseph McDonough, which took place yesterday. The ceremony was performed in Richmond, and the bride and groom left immediately for an extended wedding trip.

To Present "Cranford."
An interesting affair of this evening at 8:30 o'clock will be the presentation of "The Ladies of Cranford" by the Cheesapeake "Camp-Fire" Girls in the auditorium of the John Marshall High School. The play is a dramatization of Mrs. Gaskell's charming book, and the stage setting and costumes will carry out very attractively the quaint effects of the early Victorian period.

All interested are cordially invited to attend.
A Roanoke exchange contains the following:
"Dr. and Mrs. Charles P. Brower announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Anna Griffith, to John Joseph McDonough, which took place yesterday. The ceremony was performed in Richmond, and the bride and groom left immediately for an extended wedding trip."

Miss Clara Ingram has returned to the city, after spending some time at Virginia Beach.

Misses Josephine and Martha Clarke are visiting relatives and friends in New York City.

Miss Dorothy Harrison has returned to Richmond, after attending a house party in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. Merritt T. Crenshaw has returned to the city, after a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Alex. Grice, at Virginia Beach.

Mrs. Virginia Braxton, of this city, has been the recent guest of Mrs. W. D. Adams in Lynchburg.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Austin and family have returned to Richmond, after a week's stay at the Merriman Cottage at Ocean View.

Miss Dorothy Buckner and Miss Mary Stone, of Roanoke, are guests of Miss Margaret Mehegan for this week.

Mrs. A. M. Pattison and Miss Pattison, of this city, are registered at the Waverley Cottage at Virginia Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Avery and their daughter, Miss Virginia Lucille Avery, of New York, are guests of Mrs. M. E. Avery on East Grace Street.

Mrs. Franklin Snow is improving at the Mary Washington Hospital in Fredericksburg, after a severe illness.

Miss Elizabeth Stacy, of West Virginia, will arrive to-day to visit Miss Madeline Russell Bigger on West Grace Street.

Dr. W. C. Gerstenkorn, of Fort Worth, Texas, after a few days' visit to his brother, V. A. Gerstenkorn, of this city, will sail for Europe this week. He will be accompanied by his brother to New York.

Invitations Issued.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Fredericksburg, Va., June 2.—Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Willis Scott, of Somerset, Orange County, have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Jane Scott, to Cary Merrellus Trickett, of Orange. The ceremony will take place Wednesday, June 4, at 7:30 P. M., at Epiphany Chapel, at Somerset.

Bolt Nearly Hits Residence.
Norfolk, June 2.—During a severe electrical storm early to-day lightning struck within forty feet of the residence of Rear-Admiral R. M. Doyle, commanding the Norfolk navy yard. A large tree was hit and shattered in the yard of the family's house.

nounce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Bess, to Russell Holman Willis. The wedding will take place on Wednesday evening, June 18, at Haymarket, Prince William County.

"Miss Brower was educated at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg. In 1901 she took an A. B. degree and was likewise a graduate in instrumental music in which she specialized. She was also quite prominent in college athletics and fraternity work, having been elected national president of her fraternity, which position she still holds. After leaving college she took charge of the department of mathematics in the Southern Seminary in Buena Vista, before she was twenty years old, the school at that time having 153 students.

"Mr. Willis is a member of the well-known law firm of Halston, Halston & Willis, and is one of the most prominent and brilliant young lawyers of this city.

"Mr. Willis is the son of Mrs. J. M. Willis, of Buena Vista, and the late Rev. J. M. Willis. He is a graduate of the Richmond College, of class 1901, and also took a post-graduate course at the University of Virginia. Mr. Willis has practiced law in Roanoke for four years, and prior to that time followed his profession for four years in Rockbridge."

A very attractive program was rendered by the pupils of Miss Mosby's piano class on Saturday of the past week. Those taking part were Misses Addison, Braustein, Virginia and Lucille Coleman, George, Hoadley, Thalhimer, Williams, Antoinette and Garland Thiermann, Emily and Florrie Thomason, Elizabeth and Carrie Tallaferra, Owen, Swann, McVey, Doswell, Smith, Rogerson, Miller, Massie, Evans and Wall.

Miss Margaret Lacy Smith, who has a soprano voice of much promise, added greatly to the recital by singing Sier's "Nightingale and the Rose" and Bartlett's "A Dream."

Closing Exercises.
At the closing exercises of Miss Katharine Edwards' primary school a most attractive program of music, recitations, and original compositions was rendered by the children.

Prizes were awarded Mena Mittel-dorfer and Donald DeVillias for attendance; honorable mention was given Mena Mittel-dorfer, for leading the advanced class during the year, and to Charles Edwards, for leading the same class on examination. In the second class Donald DeVillias led for the year, and Louise Mattheosian led on examination. In the first class William Hoge led for the year, and Anne Young led the same class on examination.

Special features of the exercises were solos by Dorothy Young and Alan Campbell.

At the closing exercises of Miss Katharine Edwards' primary school a most attractive program of music, recitations, and original compositions was rendered by the children.

Prizes were awarded Mena Mittel-dorfer and Donald DeVillias for attendance; honorable mention was given Mena Mittel-dorfer, for leading the advanced class during the year, and to Charles Edwards, for leading the same class on examination. In the second class Donald DeVillias led for the year, and Louise Mattheosian led on examination. In the first class William Hoge led for the year, and Anne Young led the same class on examination.

Special features of the exercises were solos by Dorothy Young and Alan Campbell.

At the closing exercises of Miss Katharine Edwards' primary school a most attractive program of music, recitations, and original compositions was rendered by the children.

Prizes were awarded Mena Mittel-dorfer and Donald DeVillias for attendance; honorable mention was given Mena Mittel-dorfer, for leading the advanced class during the year, and to Charles Edwards, for leading the same class on examination. In the second class Donald DeVillias led for the year, and Louise Mattheosian led on examination. In the first class William Hoge led for the year, and Anne Young led the same class on examination.

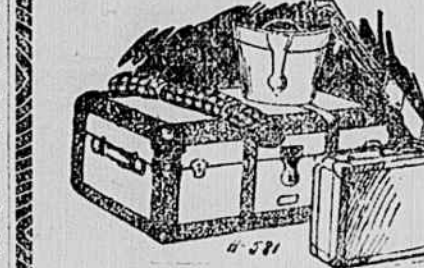

Special features of the exercises were solos by Dorothy Young and Alan Campbell.

At the closing exercises of Miss Katharine Edwards' primary school a most attractive program of music, recitations, and original compositions was rendered by the children.

Prizes were awarded Mena Mittel-dorfer and Donald DeVillias for attendance; honorable mention was given Mena Mittel-dorfer, for leading the advanced class during the year, and to Charles Edwards, for leading the same class on examination. In the second class Donald DeVillias led for the year, and Louise Mattheosian led on examination. In the first class William Hoge led for the year, and Anne Young led the same class on examination.

Traveling Goods Department, Third Floor.

Traveling Necessities Specially Priced

$5.00 Leather Tourist Bags, $3.25
Black Seal Bags, heavy leather corners, leather lining, polished brass hasps and locks, strong ring handles; shown in various sizes, 16, 17 and 18-inch.

$4.00 Suit Cases, $3.00
Brown Fibre Suit Cases, size 24-inch, 8 inches deep, shirt fold, lined, wide and long leather straps, extra heavy leather corners, ring handles and fitted with polished brass hasps and locks.

$1 Fibre Matting Suit Cases, 85c
Fibre Matting Sample Cases, 16 and 18 inches long, heavy corners, strong handles, brass locks. Just the thing for outing and shopping.

PURSE NOT IN KEEPING WITH HIS ROYAL IDEAS
King Nicholas Has Exalted Notions of Grandeur of His Position.

BY LA MARQUESE DE FONTENAY.
KING NICHOLAS of Montenegro's purse is not in keeping with his notions of royal grandeur, with the result that this most amusing of monarchs is perennially hard up. In this connection a curious story is current in certain financial circles in Paris, and in the diplomatic chancelleries of Europe, regarding the premature outbreak of the war in the Balkans last autumn.

Some little time before hostilities commenced, Nicholas sent his minister plenipotentiary in France to a leading Parisian financier, requesting, as usual, a loan. The financier declined, as in polite language he could muster, and then, as the diplomat was about to leave the room, he suddenly called him back from the door, and remarked, "Look here! I know there is trouble impending in the Balkans, and that war is imminent. If I can know four days in advance the date of the final declaration of war, I will place 3,000,000 francs at the disposal of the King; not as a loan, but as a gift."

It may be recalled that the date of the commencement of hostilities was repeatedly adjourned, owing to inability to get the allies ready for a simultaneous start. Finally Nicholas, badly in need of the 3,000,000 francs awaiting him, lost patience with the other members of the coalition, that is to say, Greece, Bulgaria and Serbia, and notified the banker at Paris that, come what may, he himself would start hostilities five days later.

For the next four days the financier played for a fall in the various stock markets of Western Europe, realizing an enormous sum when the crash came. For, true to his word, Nicholas started the war on the day promised, disconcerting his allies and also the great powers, which were busily engaged in endeavoring to avert hostilities. It was only some days later that the other Balkan kingdoms joined in the conflict.

Of course, King Nicholas got his 3,000,000 francs, and it is these that are responsible for what many regarded as the premature inauguration of hostilities by Montenegro. Of course, it was a considerable gamble for Nicholas, since there was always the remote possibility that his allies would leave him in the lurch to fight Turkey alone. But then he is a born gambler, and, indeed, most of his financial difficulties arise from his many-sided cult of the Goddess of Chance.

Lady Kinloss, peeress in her own right, and daughter of the third and last Duke of Buckingham and Chandos, has just come into a considerable fortune, and an estate known as Langton, in Dorsetshire, through the death of Lady Harvey, daughter of Sir Robert Harvey. There is a curious story attached to this fortune and bequest, which Lady Kinloss owes to her descent from Alexander Gavin, head of the house of the parish church of Lunan, Forfarshire, in the early part of the eighteenth century.

It happened that in the time of Alexander Gavin's father, who was also beadle of the parish church of Lunan, a Dutch vessel was wrecked in Lunan Bay, her captain being hopelessly entangled in the beadle's house. The friendship thus formed resulted in the eventual marriage of the Dutch captain to the old beadle's daughter, Catherine, who proceeded with her husband to Holland, where he made a fortune in the East India Company. After succeeding his father as beadle, married, and had a son of the name of David, who, while a young man, joined his uncle and aunt in Holland, became a partner in the business, and made a large fortune of his own, besides inheriting that of his uncle and aunt. He thereupon returned to Scotland.

David Gavin's first care was to provide liberally for the comfort of his parents, and, in 1758, he purchased from the Cockburn family the beautiful estate of Langton, in Dorsetshire, where he lived until his death. He married Lady Betty Maitland, a daughter of the seventh Earl of Lauderdale. His only daughter by this marriage became Marchioness of Breadalbane, and the Langton estate and the Gavin fortune passed to her daughter, Lady Elizabeth Pringle, the younger daughter being Mary, Duchess of Buckingham. Lady Pringle had two daughters, namely, Mrs. Baillie Hamilton, and Lady Harvey, each of whom succeeded in turn to the Langton estate and Gavin fortune. Leaving no issue, the entire property now passes to Mary, Duchess of Buckingham's granddaughter, Lady Kinloss.

Lady Kinloss's peerage, a Scotch barony, created in 1601, in favor of Sir Edward Bruce, who was a Scottish ambassador to England during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and who took his title from Kinloss Abbey, of which he had been the commander in 1532; is a very curious one, indeed. It was made out of the remainder to the heirs male of a first lord, and, failing them, to his heirs whatsoever, and failing them, to his assignee. That is to say, if all of the heirs of blood were to die out, the peerage would go to a perfect stranger, by means of will, as a legatee. This is the only British honor which is descendable in this peculiar manner.

Lady Kinloss, however, owes the possession of this peerage to her descent, through the distant side of the house, from the first Lord Kinloss, her grandfather, the third and last Duke of Buckingham and of Chandos, having been tenth Lord Kinloss. His dukedom became extinct on his death in 1889, when his earldom of Temple went to his nephew, Gore Langton, of Newmarket Park, his viscountcy of Cobham to his cousin, Lord Lytton, and his barony of Kinloss to his daughter, who, up to that time, had been known as Lady Mary Morgan, having married the late Major Louis Morgan, of the 1st London Regiment.

She inherited from her father, along with the barony of Kinloss, the great Palace of Stowe, in Buckinghamshire, which, with the fortune which she has now inherited, she will be able to keep up better than in times past. In fact, the expense of maintaining Stowe has compelled her to let it whenever she could and a tenant, and it was occupied from the time of his exile from France until his death, by the Comte de Paris, and afterwards by Baron de Forest.

It is approached by a magnificent avenue of elm over two miles in length, through a stately Corinthian arch, sixty feet high, the facade of the building being no less than 1,000 feet in length. The main floor of the mansion is reached by an immense flight of steps, of which a famous wit remarked that "there is no getting out of the house after dinner without tumbling down a flight of steps as high as St. Paul's." The kitchen of Stowe is one of the features of the place, and its oven grate is in proportion to the vastness of the place, holding a full ton of coal at a time. Another feature is the cedar vaulting of the private chapel, the carvings of which date from Elizabethan times; while the ceiling of the great library contains no fewer than 719 quarterings of the family arms, of the Temples, the Grenvilles, the Newtons, the Chandoses, and the Kinlosses. The pleasure grounds, extending over 1,000 acres, constitute the finest example of landscape gardening in the United Kingdom, and are immortalized in the verses of Pope, and in the prose of Horace Walpole. On the death of Lady Kinloss, her peerage, and Stowe, will pass to her eldest son, now known as the Master of Kinloss, and who is

THALHIMERS
BROAD AND FIFTH STS.

Traveling Goods Department, Third Floor.

$5.00 Leather Tourist Bags, $3.25
Black Seal Bags, heavy leather corners, leather lining, polished brass hasps and locks, strong ring handles; shown in various sizes, 16, 17 and 18-inch.

$4.00 Suit Cases, $3.00
Brown Fibre Suit Cases, size 24-inch, 8 inches deep, shirt fold, lined, wide and long leather straps, extra heavy leather corners, ring handles and fitted with polished brass hasps and locks.

$1 Fibre Matting Suit Cases, 85c
Fibre Matting Sample Cases, 16 and 18 inches long, heavy corners, strong handles, brass locks. Just the thing for outing and shopping.

PURSE NOT IN KEEPING WITH HIS ROYAL IDEAS
King Nicholas Has Exalted Notions of Grandeur of His Position.

BY LA MARQUESE DE FONTENAY.
KING NICHOLAS of Montenegro's purse is not in keeping with his notions of royal grandeur, with the result that this most amusing of monarchs is perennially hard up. In this connection a curious story is current in certain financial circles in Paris, and in the diplomatic chancelleries of Europe, regarding the premature outbreak of the war in the Balkans last autumn.

Some little time before hostilities commenced, Nicholas sent his minister plenipotentiary in France to a leading Parisian financier, requesting, as usual, a loan. The financier declined, as in polite language he could muster, and then, as the diplomat was about to leave the room, he suddenly called him back from the door, and remarked, "Look here! I know there is trouble impending in the Balkans, and that war is imminent. If I can know four days in advance the date of the final declaration of war, I will place 3,000,000 francs at the disposal of the King; not as a loan, but as a gift."

It may be recalled that the date of the commencement of hostilities was repeatedly adjourned, owing to inability to get the allies ready for a simultaneous start. Finally Nicholas, badly in need of the 3,000,000 francs awaiting him, lost patience with the other members of the coalition, that is to say, Greece, Bulgaria and Serbia, and notified the banker at Paris that, come what may, he himself would start hostilities five days later.

For the next four days the financier played for a fall in the various stock markets of Western Europe, realizing an enormous sum when the crash came. For, true to his word, Nicholas started the war on the day promised, disconcerting his allies and also the great powers, which were busily engaged in endeavoring to avert hostilities. It was only some days later that the other Balkan kingdoms joined in the conflict.

Of course, King Nicholas got his 3,000,000 francs, and it is these that are responsible for what many regarded as the premature inauguration of hostilities by Montenegro. Of course, it was a considerable gamble for Nicholas, since there was always the remote possibility that his allies would leave him in the lurch to fight Turkey alone. But then he is a born gambler, and, indeed, most of his financial difficulties arise from his many-sided cult of the Goddess of Chance.

Lady Kinloss, peeress in her own right, and daughter of the third and last Duke of Buckingham and Chandos, has just come into a considerable fortune, and an estate known as Langton, in Dorsetshire, through the death of Lady Harvey, daughter of Sir Robert Harvey. There is a curious story attached to this fortune and bequest, which Lady Kinloss owes to her descent from Alexander Gavin, head of the house of the parish church of Lunan, Forfarshire, in the early part of the eighteenth century.

It happened that in the time of Alexander Gavin's father, who was also beadle of the parish church of Lunan, a Dutch vessel was wrecked in Lunan Bay, her captain being hopelessly entangled in the beadle's house. The friendship thus formed resulted in the eventual marriage of the Dutch captain to the old beadle's daughter, Catherine, who proceeded with her husband to Holland, where he made a fortune in the East India Company. After succeeding his father as beadle, married, and had a son of the name of David, who, while a young man, joined his uncle and aunt in Holland, became a partner in the business, and made a large fortune of his own, besides inheriting that of his uncle and aunt. He thereupon returned to Scotland.

David Gavin's first care was to provide liberally for the comfort of his parents, and, in 1758, he purchased from the Cockburn family the beautiful estate of Langton, in Dorsetshire, where he lived until his death. He married Lady Betty Maitland, a daughter of the seventh Earl of Lauderdale. His only daughter by this marriage became Marchioness of Breadalbane, and the Langton estate and the Gavin fortune passed to her daughter, Lady Elizabeth Pringle, the younger daughter being Mary, Duchess of Buckingham. Lady Pringle had two daughters, namely, Mrs. Baillie Hamilton, and Lady Harvey, each of whom succeeded in turn to the Langton estate and Gavin fortune. Leaving no issue, the entire property now passes to Mary, Duchess of Buckingham's granddaughter, Lady Kinloss.

Lady Kinloss's peerage, a Scotch barony, created in 1601, in favor of Sir Edward Bruce, who was a Scottish ambassador to England during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and who took his title from Kinloss Abbey, of which he had been the commander in 1532; is a very curious one, indeed. It was made out of the remainder to the heirs male of a first lord, and, failing them, to his heirs whatsoever, and failing them, to his assignee. That is to say, if all of the heirs of blood were to die out, the peerage would go to a perfect stranger, by means of will, as a legatee. This is the only British honor which is descendable in this peculiar manner.

Lady Kinloss, however, owes the possession of this peerage to her descent, through the distant side of the house, from the first Lord Kinloss, her grandfather, the third and last Duke of Buckingham and of Chandos, having been tenth Lord Kinloss. His dukedom became extinct on his death in 1889, when his earldom of Temple went to his nephew, Gore Langton, of Newmarket Park, his viscountcy of Cobham to his cousin, Lord Lytton, and his barony of Kinloss to his daughter, who, up to that time, had been known as Lady Mary Morgan, having married the late Major Louis Morgan, of the 1st London Regiment.

She inherited from her father, along with the barony of Kinloss, the great Palace of Stowe, in Buckinghamshire, which, with the fortune which she has now inherited, she will be able to keep up better than in times past. In fact, the expense of maintaining Stowe has compelled her to let it whenever she could and a tenant, and it was occupied from the time of his exile from France until his death, by the Comte de Paris, and afterwards by Baron de Forest.

It is approached by a magnificent avenue of elm over two miles in length, through a stately Corinthian arch, sixty feet high, the facade of the building being no less than 1,000 feet in length. The main floor of the mansion is reached by an immense flight of steps, of which a famous wit remarked that "there is no getting out of the house after dinner without tumbling down a flight of steps as high as St. Paul's." The kitchen of Stowe is one of the features of the place, and its oven grate is in proportion to the vastness of the place, holding a full ton of coal at a time. Another feature is the cedar vaulting of the private chapel, the carvings of which date from Elizabethan times; while the ceiling of the great library contains no fewer than 719 quarterings of the family arms, of the Temples, the Grenvilles, the Newtons, the Chandoses, and the Kinlosses. The pleasure grounds, extending over 1,000 acres, constitute the finest example of landscape gardening in the United Kingdom, and are immortalized in the verses of Pope, and in the prose of Horace Walpole. On the death of Lady Kinloss, her peerage, and Stowe, will pass to her eldest son, now known as the Master of Kinloss, and who is a captain of the Rifle Brigade. He is now twenty-six years of age.

So much has been written about that died last week, that there only remains for me to call attention to one or two things omitted from his obituaries. One of them is that his eldest daughter, Amy, on the death of her first husband, Andrew Mulholland, became the wife of New York, by whom she has several children, who now make their home with her at St. Margaret's Croft, her country seat, in Essex. Her brother, the new Lord Avebury, is a partner in the great London bank of Rosbank, Lubbock & Company, and, like his second brother, the Hon. Norman Lubbock, who served with distinction in the South African War, is unmarried. Failing them, the peerage and the baronetcy will go to the eldest of their three half-brothers, the late Lord Avebury's second marriage, to the daughter of the late General Lane-Fox-Pitt-Rivers. The Lubbocks are an old Norfolkshire family.

PAY TRIBUTES TO JEFFERSON DAVIS

Celebration in Honor of His Birthday Held by Gloucester People.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Gloucester Courthouse, Va., June 2.—There was a big celebration at Gloucester Courthouse to-day, held in honor of the birthday of President Jefferson Davis, under the auspices of Page Puller Camp, United Confederate Veterans, and the Sallie Thompson Chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy. The celebration began with a simple ceremony around the Confederate Monument, which stands in the center of the courthouse yard, in which the old soldiers of Gloucester and the country people who had bathed in the blood of the "Lost Cause" and its great President, took part. Then they adjourned to the courthouse, where, after prayer by Comrade W. E. Wyatt, and the singing of old Confederate songs, stirring speeches were made by Hon. J. N. Stubbs, chairman, Wallace Williams, Rev. R. A. Folkes, L. C. Catlett, Rev. W. H. Groves, and Rev. W. B. Lee. At 1 o'clock the veterans formed and marched to the table, which had been prepared by the members of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and other Gloucester women. After dinner the courthouse was filled again, and until 6 o'clock, Gloucester people sang the old Confederate songs and listened to speeches made by Hon. J. S. Sanders, Hon. J. Boyd Sears, John Tabb, Jr., and others.

are happy occasions, which should be symbolized by a token of lasting beauty and usefulness.

We are pleased to suggest those gifts which would be most appreciated.

Attractive novelties from $1.00 upward.

Schwarzschild Bros.
Richmond's Leading Jewelers.
Second and Broad Sts.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE
New Method Gas Ranges
— AT —
PETTIT & CO.'S?

REINACH, Inc.
107 E. BROAD STREET
MILLINERY—Women's and Misses' Outer Apparel.

Use Pratt's Astral Oil for Incubators.
N. Klein & Son, Inc.
3 East Broad.

EAT IT THREE TIMES DAILY.
ATMOR BREAD
AT ALL GROCERS.

The Velvet Kind
Same Quality Every Day.
PURITY ICE CREAM
Monroe 1801.

The Latest in Ice Cream and Cakes from
Shepherd's New Factory
2008 W. Broad St. Call Mad. 7148

BIRTHDAY RINGS,
BRACELETS,
CAMEO BROOCHES.
Smith & Webster
805 East Main.

Ladies' Russian Calf Rubber Sole Oxfords, $2.50 to $4.00.
Men's Russian Calf Rubber Sole Oxfords, $3.50 to $5.00.
Lotheimer's
Northwest Corner Third and Broad.
See Our 1913 Patterns of GO-CARTS and CARRIAGES.
Rothert & Co.
Fourth and Broad.